FR. SEBASTIAN'S WEEKEND REFLECTIONS

The first reading of today (Acts 15:1-2, 22-29) gives the summary of the outcome of the first council of Jerusalem. The leaders of the early Christian community had met to deliberate on teething issues and came out with a message of hope for all. They all agreed not to place more burdens on the people but to direct their hearts towards purity, holiness of life and God.

The second reading (Revelation 21:10-14, 22-23) reveals to us the splendor of the holy city of Jerusalem. The radiance was so overwhelming and it was so illuminated that there was no longer need for earthly space, time or configuration. Jesus was the source of its glow. The lamb was its lamp. If God is the source of our joy, we will never hit a dry patch!

The Gospel (John 14:23-29) re-echoes the words of Jesus on love. True love dispels fear and that was why our savior reminded us not to be troubled. We will face the challenges that come our way with the understanding that the messiah is never far from us. Amen.

STEWARDSHIP THOUGHT

Today's reading from Revelation offers a vision of the City of God, the new Jerusalem. But, the bishop's pastoral on stewardship reminds us, "that the life to come is in continuity with this present life through the human goods, the worthy human purposes, which people foster now."

A very special welcome to Lance, Jen, Macy, Hadley and Sophia Schneider...new parishioners at St. Patrick's Parish.
